

Boise Events Sure to Put Some Spring in Your Step

February 2019 – Even with the mild winter, both locals and visitors are ready for the fun festivities spring brings to Boise. Annual music festivals, a vibrant arts scene, and getting out in the fresh spring air in the great outdoors are all part of a spring bucket list in Boise.

Spring into the Arts

Boise arts organizations have stacked their schedules with spring performances. Watch a modern play at Boise Contemporary Theater, unwind with a short segment Opera with Operatini performances from Opera Idaho, or experience modern dance with LED and Ballet Idaho. In addition to performance art, the Boise Art Museum has incredible exhibits lined up.

Watch Something Wonderful

Catch one of the Boise State men's and women's basketball games as the Broncos heat up this spring. The competition heats up as the Big Sky Men's and Women's Basketball Championships takes place in Boise. Or, hit the ice to see the Idaho Steelheads hockey through March and April. Visitors can celebrate the Idaho outdoors from the comfort of the Egyptian Theatre with the Les Bois Film Festival. If music is more your scene, the beloved Gene Harris Jazz Festival will be taking place at Boise State University in April. And finally, don't miss some superb speakers sharing "ideas worth spreading" at the TEDxBoise event.

Treefort Tradition

One of Boise's best and biggest events, Treefort Music Fest, is back for five days of fun this spring. In addition to music, there are several other "forts" for everyone to enjoy. Pick up some food and try tasty local brews at Foodfort and Alefort. Stand-up comedians will be serving up laughs at Comedyfort and discover Boise's emerging filmmakers at Filmfort. Experience Yogafort, a three-day yoga and movement festival, set to live music.

Get Back Outside and Moving

The Capital City Public Market and Boise Farmers Market are back in April with dozens of local artisans and food vendors lining downtown each Saturday. Go explore the long-awaited Gorongosa Exhibit at the newly remodeled Zoo Boise. Finally, grab a map and a camera because Boise's vast hiking and biking trails will reopen for full public use this spring.
